CONTRIBUTORS IN THIS ISSUE

DR (Mrs) VALENTINA STACHE ROSEN comes from a family of diplomats several of whom were orientalists. After studying Sanskrit, Chinese and archaeology at Goettingen University, she came to India on a post-graduate research scholarship. She specializes in Buddhist studies and has to her credit two Sanskrit texts from Central Asia. She now lives in Bangalore with her husband Dr Wilfried Stache, who heads the Max Muller Bhavan there.

DR ERNEST HETENYI: The Leader of the Mission and Director of the Institute Alexander Csoma de Koros for Buddhism, Budapest, Hungary.

RECHUNG RINPOCHES: Research Officer in the Institute of Tibetology. He began his scholastic studies in the Dephum Monastery near Lhasa. Rechung Rinpoche has a wide knowledge of Tibetan Art & Literature & is the author of the recent monumental publication "Tibetan Medicine". As is already known the book "Tibetan Medicine" differs from any earlier publication on the subject in that it is translated from the original Tibetan; it is not a Westerner's view of Tibetan Medicine.

DR A.M. D'ROZARIO: The Director of the Nangyal Institute of Tibetology.
