Introduction. Padmasambhava was the founder of lamain and he is now deified and celebrated in lamainam as Buddha himself. Even more than this, he is considered by the lamas of all sects to be the founder of their order and by the majority of them to be greater and more deserving of worship than Buddha himself. He is known by several names, besides his Indian name of Padmasambhava such as suggan Guru, Lo-pon, Padma, Guru, Padma-langtse etc. But his most popular name is Guru Rinpoche.

The precious Guru Padmasambhava was no an ordinary person. According to the biographies it is said that when the Buddha was about to pass to way at Kushinagar, and his disciples were weeping, he said to them the world being transitory and death inevitable for all living things the time for any departure from a lotus blossom on the dhanakosha lake in the north-west corner of the country of Java (which in the swat valley in Pakistan) will be born one who will be much wiser and more spiritually powerful than myself. He will be called Padmasambhava and by him the exterion will be established.

BIRTH OF PADMASAMBHAVA

What is said in the above prophecy regarding the birth of Padmasambhava all the facts are not correct. In fact he was born in Urgyan (Udyan) as all the sources agree on this point but the exact data about his birth is not available anywhere being contemporary with the Tibetan king Khri-srong lde-tsan and having helped in the establishment of Samya monastery in the year 740 A.D. it may be said that he was born during the first quarter of the Eighth Century A.D.

A cursory glance of the foregoing story of the birth of Padmasambhava would reveal that it resembles very much in style, leaving aside the content with the common Indian mythological stories and folktales. This gives rise to the idea that there existed some Indian language which may also have been one of the sources of the present biographers. What confirms the beliefs further is that Lama Tansil, the author of the famous book 'History of Buddhism in India' has also written a biography of Padmasambhava based on the common tradition of India. His work is styled as slohupon Padma, i.e., that riga-nyi lung yid-chos gum lalan (Biography of the acharya Padma according to the Indian tradition, supported by three bases for faith.)

The king Indrabuddhi adopted the child at his son and made him his heir to the throne. The child was given education and training in all subjects of learning according to the tradition suitable to the princes. The boy was very intelligent and he exhibited his interest in studying and learning.

In the course of time the king Indrabuddhi and his minister observed the boy was losing

1 Waddell, I. A. Buddhism and lamainism of Tibet Heritage publishers New delhi. 1979, p 24
2 Ibid. p. 24
4 Ibid. p 28.
interest in the worldly things and was showing increasing interest in meditative life. He feared that in this manner the prince would eventually renounce the kingdom. Efforts were soon made to find a girl suitable for the hero princely lotus born. Ultimately a girl named Bhadra, daughter of King Chandra Kumar was found and considered as suitable bride, and was married to the prince. However marriage proved to be too weak a fetter to keep the prince off the thoughtful and meditation.

HOW HE BECAME A RELIGIOUS LEADER

At last the eventful day came and the prince announced to the kingfather his intention to abdicate and enter the Sangha. The king could not oppose for he understood that his assistance will not prove fruitful. While parting with the king Queens, ministers and servants who were all weeping with sorrow, the lotus born one proclaimed. This worldly life is transitory and separation is inevitable. As in a market place human beings came together and then separation. This is the wheel of the world, let us renounce it and fix our thoughts upon attaining liberation.

Padmasambhava then proceeded towards Bodh-Gaya. There he chose a place named "cool sandal wood" Cemetery for staying and he remained there for five years practicing meditation. During this period he observed strict discipline of meditation. His food was offered to the dead and his choosing the shrouds of the corpses. Soon Padmasambhava felt need of studying the time secret Doctrines and searched for a Guru.

Accordingly, Padmasambhava went first to a saint Guru who was a "Loka-Siddha" at Henaras. From him he learned the Kalachakra Doctrine and became master of astrology. From a Physician he learned medicines. From a learned Yogi he learned sanskrit and several other languages. Vohvarkarma, a great artist taught him the art of making of images: painting, engraving and many other useful art.

Guru Prabhanastai taught Padma the means of attaining Buddhisthood, of avoiding spiritual retrogression of gaining mastery over the three Briosons and concerning the parasmitas and Yoga.

In this manner Padmasambhava finally received ordination into the Sangha and became professor of the Doctrine. After becoming master of all the known arts and fully possessed of the dharma Padma started his mission of teaching the dharma both exotically and esoterically, his mission in the human world takes him to all parts of India, China, Nepal, Bhutan, Sikkim and Tibet he was invited to Tibet by venerable Santarakshita to assist him to preach Buddhism there as he was unable to face the oppostent priests who followed the corrupt bon religion.

MISSION IN TIBET

Before proceeding to Tibet Padmasambhava made a study of the "Bon" religion of Tibet. On his way to Tibet in the year 746 A.D. The twelve guardian deities at first made

1. Bagat P.V. 2500 Years of Buddhism, Government Publications of India '987, P. 67
2. William Carey, Travel and Adventure in Tibet, Mittal Publication, New Delhi P. 74
an attempt to harm him, but he subduced them, and then after initiating them he converted to them the guardianship of the doctrine, all along the route he then travelled subduing the demonic beings. His first resting place was at Tod-kung, about 16 kilometers from Lhasa. On reaching Lhasa he was received by the King and the people with great honoured and respect. The Tibet King sent the two chief ministers of state to meet Padma, with letters and presents and 500 mounted followers. The king's own horse, saddle with a golden saddle, was sent to fetch Padmasambhava. After sometime on his arrival in Tibet in 747 A.D. Padmasambhava visited Samye, an the firstday of the eighth Tibetan month. The king escorted Padma to the place at samye and placed him on a gold throne and the Bodhisattva Padma's companion who was a professor in Nalanda on a silver throne and made religious offerings.

Padmasambhava consecrated the site and appeased the evil spirits by teaching to them the precepts. While performing the consecration ceremony, Padma manifested himself in one hundred and eight bodies. During the period of the image of the Buddha of Jo-Khang in Lhasa was again brought and Bonpos in Tibet publicly debated, and the Bonpos being defeated the king expelled most of those who would not unbrance Buddhism to the deserts of worth to Nepal mongolia and other sparsely populated countries. Buddhist was then introduced into all parts of Tibet many sanskrit works were translated into Tibetan. Samya, meaning "Academy for obtaining the heap of unchanging meditation" is started to be the first Buddhist monasteries built in Tibet after the potala I at Lhasa near the bank of Tsangpo river, at an attitudes of about 11,450 feet.

In the compound completion of the masters the Guru assisted by the Indian monk Shantaraksita. There the order of the lamas Shantaraksita was made the first abbot and worked there for fourteen years.

PADMAISM (LAMAISM)

Shantaraksita succeeded in founding the Dharma in Tibet again. The great respect in which Tibetans hold the memory of Padmasambhava to this day is the testimony of the success he achieved in accomplishing the undertaking of re-establishment of faith among the Tibetans in the undertaking of re-establishment of faith among the Tibetans in the enlightened teaching of Buddhism. Now as the object of coming of Tibet was accomplished fully, Padma decided to take leave from Tibet was accomplished fully. Padma decided to take leave from Tibet. While departing from Tibet he said: "Hereafter the Doctrine will be disseminated by attendants, mounted on horses accompanied Padma to Qa-sam-la where all the party camped for the night. Next day Padma, after having pronounced his final blessings, in the name of the Buddha the Dharma and the Sangha set out on his long missionary work in other countries. Leaving Tibet left behind Twenty-five disciples all able to continue the good work that he had started. These men by vigorous campaigns, popularised Buddhism in Tibet and in the time of Bal-chen the grandson of Bshi-sung-Lde btsun, Buddhism became the established religion of the country.

1 Ibid. P 76

Padmasambhava also had five women disciples who compiled several accounts of the teachings of their master and hid them in various places, for the benefit of future believers. One of these disciples Khar Dro (Dakini) Yesha Tso-gyal, was a Tibetan lady who is said to have possessed such a powerful of that if she gathered what she had heard from her Guru into book i.e. the biography of the Guru named earlier as Padma-Kun-Thang-yig. It was hidden away and was subsequently revealed under inspiration by a Stor-Ston.

Padma staved to have composed several works. He also translated some books with help of Tibetan Lo-tsa-bas. In the old index of the bsTan-gyur there are only two texts (translators) - 1. Skra-ma'na-sa sngag-griwa, and 2. Bhulshura-tshig-griwa.

The latter one was translated into Tibetan under the title dge-'slob-gidbang-po'i lo-dri-bche; Dipankara Srijana (Acharya Atisa) and Nag. tsho-lo-tsa bsa. Another work of Padmasambhava named Vyramantra-btus-samhuma tantra was translated into Tibetan by Sa-Skya Pandita. Kun-dga' rgyal-mdzad (1182-1252 A.D.) the work named Zla-gang-thug-le was translated into Tibetan by Padmasambhava and dpal-brtsags. The debt that Tibet owes to Padmasambhava is great, but the return made by the faithful Tibetan is for than they really owe. They have produced a vast amount of literature which wheel round his name. Several rites are performed in his name periodically, that may be yearly, monthly and even daily, people recite mantras for him unceasingly countless times. He is revered in every Buddhist temple to whichever sect the temple may belong. How great faith. People put his name can be seen from the remarks of revered Chantarial Rinpoche. “The making of one hundred thousand images of Guru Padmasambhava the repeating of his mantras one hundred thousand time, etc. are like the cast shade cast by five hundred Thousand layers of cloud in hot weather. It’s like shower of nectar, like the rain producing harvest it benefits both oneself and others.”

Though the Lamrim founded by Padmasambhava was later reformed by the Indian Missionary Atisa and thereafter by the Tibetan reformer Tsong-Kha-Pa the teaching of Padmasambhava have been followed by the Nying-Ma-Pa or old school commonly known as Red Hats. Though many Indians had gone to Tibet after Padmasambhava non is held in greater, stotica and he is as revered recently referred to as the Guru of Tibet. No Indian teacher has ever attained examine in his country by more wizardry and Padmasambhava could not have been an exception. An ardent Buddhist brought up in the Indian tradition a student of Nalanda and a well travelled man, Padmasambhava was not possibly a mere exorcist. In all probability he was that rare phenomenon, the mystic and man of affairs combined that appears in the world once in many years.

1. Wifi. P. 76.
2. Ibid. P. 77.
BIBLIOGRAPHY

1. ARIS MICHAEL AND AUNG SANYI. EGS. TIBETAN STUDIES IN HONOUR OF HUGH RICHAWSON. NEW DELHI 1980.

2. BAPAT, P. V. Ed. 2500 YEARS OF BUDDHISM. GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS OF INDIA. 1987.

3. WILLIAM, CAREY. TRAVAL AND ADVENTURE IN TIBET. MITTAL PUBLICATION. NEW DELHI.
