Maoist damage in Butwal

The Maoists are now picking on the weak and helpless. Those with money have little choice but to run away, leave everything and head to India in search of work. Villagers in Rolpa were mistaken for Maoists. Villagers in Rolpa going to the forests to collect firewood were wounded during helicopter attacks. Surkhet villagers were burnt alive in a helicopter attack. Kotwara in Kalikot has seen casualties: construction workers at an airfield, political cadre of the Nepali Congress and UML shot because they were mistaken for Maoists. Many Nepalis suffer from trachoma, an eye infection that leads to blindness. Now there is hope of better vision for tomorrow.

Five stages of Trachoma

1. Trachomatous Inflammation — Intense
   - The earliest stage of trachoma, characterized by redness and inflammation of the conjunctiva, the mucous membrane covering the eye. This stage is often asymptomatic.

2. Trachomatous Inflammation — Follicular
   - In this stage, small nodules called follicles develop on the conjunctiva. These nodules are associated with the immune response to the initial infection.

3. Trachomatous Inflammation — Filamentous
   - The third stage is marked by the development of long, thin, thread-like strands extending from the eye. These filaments can cause discomfort and affect vision.

4. Trachomatous Scarring
   - As the infection progresses, the follicles resolve, leaving permanent scars that can distort the shape of the eye and interfere with vision.

5. Trachomatous Trichiasis
   - This final stage occurs when the lashes turn inward and scrape against the cornea, causing pain and further damage to the eye.

Nepal's Efforts

Nepal is the first country in South Asia to sign a National Plan of Action which includes both trachoma surgery camps and community trachoma control programs. This integrated approach involves treating cases, preventing new infections, and targeting high-risk groups.

Statistics

- Prevalence
  - 12.5% of the population is at risk of blindness from trachoma.
  - 146 million people need treatment.

- Distribution
  - Eastern Mediterranean: 50 million cases
  - Asia: 40 million cases
  - Western Pacific: 50 million cases

Impact

- Reduced Vision
  - 50% of those affected lose their sight.
  - 12% of the global burden of blindness is due to trachoma.

Control Strategies

- Surgery
  - Cataract surgery can restore vision in affected individuals.
  - Antibiotics
  - Mass antibiotic distribution is key in reducing trachoma.
  - Facial cleanliness
  - Promoting good hygiene practices helps prevent new infections.

Conclusion

Trachoma is a preventable disease. By implementing targeted interventions, we can hope to overcome this ancient scourge and restore vision to millions of people worldwide.
A palliative was being withheld; we were told to keep our breaths steady and our thoughts content so that they would be able to act. There was a new deal offered by our last experiment; if people were to trust us we would be able to sell off the whole population. This was the beginning of the end. So we were to leave the land now and make our way to the desert, because we could not trust anyone. It was a difficult decision to make; the country was divided and the situation was volatile.

Back in Kathmandu this week the focus was on the runner in a blue jacket, planning for his 2003 marathon. He started in a lake ice in the north by the Himalaya, and is back in Kathmandu to train. He says that he is going to be the first man to run from the North Pole to the South Pole, and then from the South Pole to the North Pole.

The most convenient shopping place - free from parking problems.

The marathon is organized every year by the Himalayan Mountaineers Association in Kathmandu with the help of the Nepalese government. This year's event was held on the 25th of May and was attended by over 1,000 runners from 15 different countries. The marathon was divided into four segments, with the first one being a 10km race from Kathmandu to Hetauda, the second one being a 21km race from Hetauda to Kathmandu, the third one being a 32km race from Kathmandu to Pokhara, and the fourth one being a 42km race from Pokhara to Kathmandu.

The race started at 6:00 am and ended at 3:00 pm. The runners were divided into four categories: men, women, senior citizens, and children. The marathon was covered by the national and international media, and there were over 1,000 spectators who came to support the runners.

The race was organized by the Himalayan Mountaineers Association, who are responsible for the safety and smooth running of the event. The event was supported by the Nepalese government, and the Nepalese army.

The race was sponsored by various companies, including the Indian Oil Corporation, the Nepal Electricity Authority, and the Nepalese government.

The marathon was highly successful, with over 1,000 runners participating in the event. The runners were encouraged to run for a good cause, and many of them were training for a marathon or other running event.

We come from a tradition where politics is seen as a “subject”, not a field of competition. Our political system is structured in such a way that, even if we have a deep-seated democratic tradition, it is not always possible to hold a transparent and free election. The government has not curtailed foreign travel and associated expenses even during a state of wide shutdown. Similarly, the government has not been able to ensure that the SLC exams, which are important for students’ future, could be conducted smoothly. “We have mobilised all the security agencies, and hope that all the students will appear in the exams,” Sharmi said, without announcing any timeframe.

Frequent flyers

The government has also been criticized for its frequent foreign travel and associated expenses. “We are not aware of any specific plan to provide protection for students taking the SLC examination,” Sharmi said, without announcing any timeframe.

The Nepali Students’ Union also claimed that its union is willing to offer assistance to the government in ensuring the safety of students taking the SLC exams. “We will continue to support the government in this regard,” he said.

“Dummy government?”

Chaitra, 31 March

The four-day Nepal health crisis called by the government and the main opposition parties has gone to affect 300,000 students who have to appear in the next year’s annual health exam. “If we fail, the lives of our students will be affected,” said a student who was present at the health crisis.

Some may agree with the government, so they may not agree. But there is a need to discuss about the issue and the government has to settle the issue. We are deeply worried about the students’ situation.

The prime minister and the defence minister are the key figures in this situation. The prime minister is responsible for the lives of the people, and as chair of the National Security Council, the prime minister is responsible for the issue raised. We demand a satisfactory explanation from the main opposition parties about this.”

We are highlighting this issue in hope of people representatives the concerns raised by the people of the country. Those people have the right to know about the issue and the government should settle it.

We don’t know if Sher Bahadur Deuba’s government is a dummy, or whether it is actually functioning. It is a dummy government, why the Nepali Congress is still supporting it. This government is helpless, just a shadow. Why has a puppet government been allowed to continue its term?

This is the first of a three-part study of the history and lifestyle of the Lam, the Tibetan Buddhist tradition, particularly for those almost erased from view permanently within the Vajrayana lineage. The central focus of the story is a young woman who brings forth the story of the early women and modern practitioners of Lam teachings.
