Crime and the city

Armed robbery is the most alarming wave of crime to sweep the Valley in recent times. With a reduced number of security patrols after the ceasefire, Kathmandu residents are feeling increasingly unsafe and isolated. Nepali Times investigates.

NAVIN SINGH KHANDRA

H eavy Monday morning traffic congestion, describing theastle into the massive third block of the palace. And the Mians are on stage in the back.

Inspiring the most significant event of the week was the meeting between King Gyanendra and the political parties collectively to provide a "nukas" to the nation.

As the royal palace, the rebels and the political parties circle each other wary, a possible meeting between King Gyanendra and the political parties collectively may provide a "nukas" to the nation.

Nepali Times

It's showtime!

As the royal palace, the rebels and the political parties circle each other wary, a possible meeting between King Gyanendra and the political parties collectively may provide a "nukas" to the nation.

As the royal palace, the rebels and the political parties circle each other wary, a possible meeting between King Gyanendra and the political parties collectively may provide a "nukas" to the nation.

As the royal palace, the rebels and the political parties circle each other wary, a possible meeting between King Gyanendra and the political parties collectively may provide a "nukas" to the nation.

As the royal palace, the rebels and the political parties circle each other wary, a possible meeting between King Gyanendra and the political parties collectively may provide a "nukas" to the nation.
Demobilisation, demilitarisation and democratisation

The RNA is the most important political party in Nepal. It is the largest political force and the one that has the most influence. The party is led by Prachanda, a former guerilla leader, and Madhav Kumar Nepal, the former finance minister.

The RNA has been in power for a long time, and it is the party that has been able to maintain power through elections. However, the party has been accused of corruption and has been involved in several scandals. The party is also known for its close relationship with the armed forces, which has raised concerns about its commitment to democracy.

Despite these concerns, the RNA has been able to maintain its position as the largest political force in Nepal. The party has been able to do this by appealing to a wide range of voters, including both urban and rural populations. The party has also been able to maintain its support by offering a wide range of policies, including economic development and social welfare.

The RNA is currently in power, and it is working to address the needs of the Nepalese people. The party is committed to making Nepal a better place to live, and it is working hard to ensure that the country's economic and social development is on track.

In conclusion, the RNA is the most important political party in Nepal. The party is a large force, and it is committed to making Nepal a better place to live. The party has been able to maintain its position as the largest political force in Nepal, and it is working hard to address the needs of the Nepalese people.

HISTORY WAITS

They went to the market and bought snacks, and then they had a picnic on the grass. The food was delicious, and they all enjoyed themselves. The children had a wonderful time playing with the toys that they had brought along. The adults chatted and laughed, and they all had a great time.

At this moment, all eyes are on the king. Whether it's the 35-point agreement or the ceasefire, we were all relieved when it was signed. The news of strikes organised by the Maoists was a big shock to everyone. But the ceasefire has brought some relief.

The people have more or less displayed the swagger of an undisputed winner. At the closing of negotiations between warring parties, the government and the Maoists respectively, held a joint press conference. Protocol-conscious Bhattarai thought it fit to indulge spokespersons of the government and the insurgents respectively, held a joint press conference.

At one time Toni was not very popular. His trade are you? Can you make toys? I am a student too, and I hope to be a teacher someday. Toni and his brothers were walking, fast speaking and doing their hard-earned money. But the police stopped them, fearing they would weaponise, but as the force grows the police are feeling overwhelmed by the numbers.

At the closing of negotiations between warring parties, the government and the Maoists respectively, held a joint press conference. Protocol-conscious Bhattarai thought it fit to indulge spokespersons of the government and the insurgents respectively, held a joint press conference. Protocol-conscious Bhattarai thought it fit to indulge spokespersons of the government and the insurgents respectively, held a joint press conference.

It seems that the government is in a rush at the government at the moment. Whether it's the 35-point agreement or the ceasefire, the government is rushing to get things done.

The Maoists relentlessly fought with elected governments and the people. The government and the Maoists were in a state of war. The Maoists have been fighting for their rights, and they have the support of the people. The government has been fighting for its survival, and it has the support of the military.

The Maoists have been fighting for their rights, and they have the support of the people. The government has been fighting for its survival, and it has the support of the military. The people have more or less displayed the swagger of an undisputed winner.

The people have more or less displayed the swagger of an undisputed winner. At the closing of negotiations between warring parties, the government and the Maoists respectively, held a joint press conference.

At one time Toni was not very popular. His trade are you? Can you make toys? I am a student too, and I hope to be a teacher someday. Toni and his brothers were walking, fast speaking and doing their hard-earned money. But the police stopped them, fearing they would weaponise, but as the force grows the police are feeling overwhelmed by the numbers.

At the closing of negotiations between warring parties, the government and the Maoists respectively, held a joint press conference. Protocol-conscious Bhattarai thought it fit to indulge spokespersons of the government and the insurgents respectively, held a joint press conference. Protocol-conscious Bhattarai thought it fit to indulge spokespersons of the government and the insurgents respectively, held a joint press conference.
Crime and the city

Kathmandu is falling prey to a rise in robberies. Nepal Times investigates.

Better safe than sorry

There is no mystique to the new era of crime and robbery, as security awareness and vigilance Katrina Dandapani reports.

Bhedaye Jeevan, a middle-aged Nepali woman, could not believe her eyes as she looked around her night-time workplace in the heart of Kathmandu's Thamel. "I have never walked the streets at night without my bodyguard. I don't think it is safe," she said, as she stood in front of a guardrail that promised security againstpossible intruders. The Thamel-sector, which is the main commercial hub of the capital city, has seen a sharp rise in the number of robberies.

Shah, who has been living in the Thamel area for the past five years, says he has become more cautious with time. "I used to walk around freely at night, but now I feel safer with a guard," he said.

The rise in crime is not just limited to Thamel. Other parts of the city, such as Basantapur and Durbar Square, have also witnessed an increase in robberies.

The police are yet to come up with a comprehensive strategy to tackle the rising trend in crime. "We are working on it," a police official said.

In recent months, the city police have increased their patrols in the Thamel area, but residents say they still feel insecure.

"We have been asked to report any incident to the police, but we don't trust them," said a resident.

The police are also facing criticism for their lack of action in cases of robbery. "They are just looking the other way," said a resident.

There is a need for a collective effort to tackle the problem of crime. The police, residents, and the government must work together to ensure safety and security.

The police have also been criticized for their lack of training and equipment. "They need to be better equipped," said a resident.

The government has announced plans to increase the police force and provide them with modern equipment. "We are working on it," a government official said.

In the meantime, residents are urged to be vigilant and take necessary precautions to protect themselves from crime.

So far so good...

...but Nepal's politicians need some lessons in the art of politics.

Baburam Bhattarai, a senior Maoist leader, has recently returned from a visit to India. He said that his party is planning to enter the national politics to contest the upcoming elections.

"We are looking for a peaceful and democratic transition," Bhattarai said.

Despite the recent developments, there are concerns about the future of Nepal's political landscape. "We need a strong and stable government," a political analyst said.

The recent developments have also raised questions about the role of the Maoists in the country's political process. "We need to find a way to integrate them into the mainstream politics," a political analyst said.

The government is also facing criticism for its handling of the recent elections. "They need to do better," said a political analyst.

In the meantime, the Maoists continue to insist on their demands for a peaceful and democratic transition. "We will go to the streets if our demands are not met," a Maoist leader said.

The government is also facing pressure from the international community to ensure a peaceful and democratic transition.

"We need to work together to find a solution," a political analyst said.

The recent developments have also raised questions about the future of Nepal's political landscape. "We need a strong and stable government," a political analyst said.

The government is also facing criticism for its handling of the recent elections. "They need to do better," said a political analyst.

In the meantime, the Maoists continue to insist on their demands for a peaceful and democratic transition. "We will go to the streets if our demands are not met," a Maoist leader said.

The government is also facing pressure from the international community to ensure a peaceful and democratic transition.

"We need to work together to find a solution," a political analyst said.

The recent developments have also raised questions about the future of Nepal's political landscape. "We need a strong and stable government," a political analyst said.

The government is also facing criticism for its handling of the recent elections. "They need to do better," said a political analyst.

In the meantime, the Maoists continue to insist on their demands for a peaceful and democratic transition. "We will go to the streets if our demands are not met," a Maoist leader said.

The government is also facing pressure from the international community to ensure a peaceful and democratic transition.

"We need to work together to find a solution," a political analyst said.

The recent developments have also raised questions about the future of Nepal's political landscape. "We need a strong and stable government," a political analyst said.

The government is also facing criticism for its handling of the recent elections. "They need to do better," said a political analyst.

In the meantime, the Maoists continue to insist on their demands for a peaceful and democratic transition. "We will go to the streets if our demands are not met," a Maoist leader said.

The government is also facing pressure from the international community to ensure a peaceful and democratic transition.

"We need to work together to find a solution," a political analyst said.
The political purposes of donors are becoming more pronounced. Aid was never purely altruistic. It's never been easier to subscribe to.

A visiting Nepali diplomatic cadet in his concluding statement of power was once sponsored by the British press for his official visit to the UK.

Nepal Times: What challenges do the NEA face?

Managing Director of the Nepal Electricity Authority, Janak Lali Karmacharya has to navigate through donor funding and hydropower projects on hold as well as restructure a parasitical entity.

As his bureau大楼uptook fortight reputation in an interview with Nepal Times.

The NEA has a long list of challenges, ranging from securing funding to balancing the budget and improving the service delivery. However, the NEA has made significant progress in recent years in terms of modernization and efficiency.

One of the main challenges facing the NEA is the need to improve the reliability of the power grid. The NEA has been working on this issue for several years, and has made some progress in recent years. However, there is still a long way to go, and the NEA will need to continue to work on this issue in order to meet the needs of its customers.

Another challenge facing the NEA is the need to reduce its dependence on imported fuel. The NEA has been working on this issue for several years, and has made some progress in recent years. However, there is still a long way to go, and the NEA will need to continue to work on this issue in order to reduce its dependence on imported fuel.

The NEA is also facing challenges related to its financial sustainability. The NEA has been working on this issue for several years, and has made some progress in recent years. However, there is still a long way to go, and the NEA will need to continue to work on this issue in order to achieve financial sustainability.

In conclusion, the NEA has made significant progress in recent years, but there is still a long way to go in terms of addressing the challenges facing the NEA. The NEA will need to continue to work on these issues in order to meet the needs of its customers and achieve long-term sustainability.
A look at billboards that are dwarfing Kathmandu’s skyline.

NAVIN SINGH KHADKA

The good, bad and ugly

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The city is being transformed into billboard-ville. Kathmandu is going to turn into billboard-ville. The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

The law also states that billboards cannot be more than 50 percent of the business, and they should be placed in a manner that does not cause any inconvenience to traffic. Billboards should act as reminders of traffic rules, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.

Billboards are mushrooming in the Nepali capital ahead of the peak tourist season. The recent rodent invasion is forcing many road safety regulations to be ignored. A look at the billboards that are polluting the skyline. This has led to a number of safety concerns, especially in the capital.

The government has not taken any action to regulate the explosion of billboards in the city. Billboards are being erected without any planning or regulation.

The digitisation of the process has made hoardings more attractive. The quality of reproductions is far better and the cost is almost three times as much. The law declares that billboards should present the product’s story, not just advertisements. The elaboration of the process means of Billboards advertising has meant a revolution in costs, in terms of both time and money, which explains why the demand for billboards has increased. In the competitive business environment, time is money, and more advertising agencies and their clients are ready to absorb the higher cost.
The mid-Atlantic rift

The Euro-American divide does mirror fundamental differences in values.

The concept of “race” is fundamental to many US policies, especially in military spending, if and when the US would be better resolved using smart diplomacy than smart money. This is not, and should not, bring the two sides into conflict.

In America, the national self-image is strongly wrapped up in the idea of expansion and dominance, to a level unequalled by any other major power. US values are rooted in an aggressive dynamic and, as such, the US wants the other side to be weak. This is why it is so difficult to find a peaceful compromise, even in seemingly minor issues.

In Europe, the national self-image is also rooted in the concept of “race” and, in a way, in the idea of expansion and dominance. But the US wants the other side to be strong. This is why it is so difficult to find a peaceful compromise, even in seemingly minor issues.

The concept of “race” is fundamental to many US policies, especially in military spending, if and when the US would be better resolved using smart diplomacy than smart money. This is not, and should not, bring the two sides into conflict.

In America, the national self-image is strongly wrapped up in the idea of expansion and dominance, to a level unequalled by any other major power. US values are rooted in an aggressive dynamic and, as such, the US wants the other side to be weak. This is why it is so difficult to find a peaceful compromise, even in seemingly minor issues.

In Europe, the national self-image is also rooted in the concept of “race” and, in a way, in the idea of expansion and dominance. But the US wants the other side to be strong. This is why it is so difficult to find a peaceful compromise, even in seemingly minor issues.

The concept of “race” is fundamental to many US policies, especially in military spending, if and when the US would be better resolved using smart diplomacy than smart money. This is not, and should not, bring the two sides into conflict.

In America, the national self-image is strongly wrapped up in the idea of expansion and dominance, to a level unequalled by any other major power. US values are rooted in an aggressive dynamic and, as such, the US wants the other side to be weak. This is why it is so difficult to find a peaceful compromise, even in seemingly minor issues.
On the table

Official shuffle

Kathmandu, 26 April

A wave of transfers and promotions in the political establishment has been set in motion by the newly appointed Prime Minister, G. K. Ohari. The promotions include seven ministers, a dozen directors of Government departments and nearly 2,000 was posted personal staff.

The hasty and very low-key selection process of new political leaders and officials in the Ohari government, and the much delayed move to ensure the political interests of the former UPA regime have raised concerns about the legitimacy of changes in the government.

The reshuffle, which comes two days after the new cabinet took oath, includes the promotion of Dilli Ghimire to the post of Minister for Defence.

The Ministry of Defence is currently being run by former leader of the UPA, B.P. Koirala, who is also the leader of the main opposition party, the Nepali Congress. Koirala's exit from the cabinet was preceded by a series of political and constitutional crises, including the reinstatement of the monarchy.

Campaigns, talks and gridlock

Kathmandu, 26 April

The third round of talks between the government and Maoist rebels ended on Thursday without any breakthrough, leaving the country heading for a government collapse. The Maoists reiteratively demanded the reinstatement of the monarchy, which was abolished in 2008.

The government, led by Prime Minister K.M. Oli, has rejected the demand, saying the reinstatement of the monarchy would violate the constitution. The government has also refused to negotiate on the reinstatement of any other political leaders who were removed during the transition period.

The Maoists have threatened to launch a fresh round of violence if the talks fail to produce any results. The two sides have so far failed to agree on a number of key issues, including the reinstatement of the monarchy and the reinstatement of all political leaders who were removed during the transition period.

Doors open for foreign media

Kathmandu, 27 April

The government has decided to allow foreign media outlets to report on the current political crisis without prior clearance. The move comes after the government had barred foreign journalists from covering the Maoist rebellion.

The government had earlier barred foreign journalists from covering the Maoist rebellion, citing security concerns. However, the new move indicates a shift in the government's approach towards the media.

Finally, the government has decided to lift the ban on foreign media outlets, allowing them to report on the current political crisis without prior clearance. The decision comes after the government had been criticized for its restrictive media policy.

The government had earlier barred foreign journalists from covering the Maoist rebellion, citing security concerns. However, the new move indicates a shift in the government's approach towards the media.

The government had earlier barred foreign journalists from covering the Maoist rebellion, citing security concerns. However, the new move indicates a shift in the government's approach towards the media.

Fishy story

Kathmandu, 27 April

A recent election in the southern region of Nepal has come under scrutiny after reports of irregularities surfaced. The election, which was held on 15 April, has been marred by allegations of vote rigging and irregularities.

The election was held in the southern region of Nepal, where the Maoists have traditionally been strong. The election was held in the southern region of Nepal, where the Maoists have traditionally been strong.

The election was held in the southern region of Nepal, where the Maoists have traditionally been strong.

The election was held in the southern region of Nepal, where the Maoists have traditionally been strong.

No refuge for Sharan

Kathmandu, 27 April

Sharan Majhi, who was a major part of the Maoist Sanghi's task force, was killed in a gun battle with the Nepalese Army on 25 April. The government has described Majhi as a key leader of the Maoist Sanghi, who has been involved in a series of violent attacks in the past.

Majhi, who was a key leader of the Maoist Sanghi, has been involved in a series of violent attacks in the past.

Majhi, who was a key leader of the Maoist Sanghi, has been involved in a series of violent attacks in the past.

Majhi, who was a key leader of the Maoist Sanghi, has been involved in a series of violent attacks in the past.

Majhi, who was a key leader of the Maoist Sanghi, has been involved in a series of violent attacks in the past.
Friends of the Bagmati

The Nepal Amateur Open 2003

Tennis coaching classes

Contemporary paintings

friendsofthebagmatinepal@yahoo.com

at the Naga Theatre of the Vajra Hotel. Tickets Rs 700.

and Western Reiki, at Baber Mahal Revisited. Elif at 5541613, reiki@eld.org.uk Hotel Blue Star, Thapathali. Tickets Rs 800 single, Rs 1500 couple (drinks and

7.15 PM  2-3 May and 9-11 May. 4271545

4428549

Madan Krishna Shrestha, Hari Bansa Acharya, Ram Krishna

paintings by Mark Jordans at the Lazimpat Gallery Café.

Kashmir and Sikkim, the corridor extends over the plains of India that has led to the build up of moisture

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the country in the past three weeks is correlated to a

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the

sudden rise in temperature—close to 40 degrees—in the sudden rise in temperatur

PARIS—A new private international airline from Nepal has expressed an interest in acquiring a winning bid for the charter flights of the defunct Concorde service across the Atlantic. The airline, which has been named Blue Diamond, is expected to operate between London and New York, with future plans to expand to other destinations in the United States.

Blue Diamond's chief executive, Captain Badal, confirmed that the airline was in talks to acquire the Concorde service, which was suspended after a fatal crash in 2000. He said: "We are in discussions with several interested parties, including Concorde's former owners British Airways and Air France. We believe there is a significant demand for a supersonic service between Europe and the Americas, and we are confident that we can meet the challenge."