Introduction

This paper provides an English translation and Tibetan edition of Atiśa Dīpaṃkaraśrījñāna's (982–1054 CE) The Means for the Attainment of the Twenty-One Tārās (sgrol ma nyi shu rtsa gcig gi sgrub thabs; hereafter, Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana) based on evidence of newly recovered Tibetan manuscripts. No Indian who visited Tibet in the past one thousand years had a greater impact on the Buddhism there than Atiśa Dīpaṃkaraśrījñāna (982–1054). Atiśa is renowned for his devotion to the goddess Tārā who appeared in his dreams and visions, and bestowed predictions upon him throughout his life. His charismatic devotion to the goddess was the impetus for the faithful worship of Tārā in Tibetan Buddhist culture since the mid-eleventh century. Atiśa's lineage tradition of Tārā is the most distinguished among the five teaching traditions of Tārā in Tibet. The entire ritual edifice of worshipping Tārā in Tibet is built upon Atiśa's major works on the goddess. Atiśa's praise of the "Twenty-One Tārās" is iconographically one of the most popular in Tibetan painting, yet textual evidence for Atiśa's systematic ritual evocation of these forms of Tārā has yet to be documented in publication. The following study, translation, and Tibetan edition furnishes for the first time Atiśa's Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana. This study also provides the earliest extant Tibetan edition of The Praise to Tārā with Twenty-One Verses of Homage.<sup>1</sup>

The Buddhist Goddess Tārā

The Buddhist goddess Tārā, as is well known, is a bodhisattva savioress who develops into a female buddha. The name Tārā means literally "star" and a common derivation of her name is also from the verbal root “to cross” ( $\sqrt{tr}$ ).<sup>2</sup> Yet, her historical beginnings are difficult to trace. There is no solid evidence for Tārā in Buddhist practice before the fifth century and the primary inspiration for her worship may have derived from the Brahmanical Devī or Durgā.<sup>3</sup> In the seventh-century ritual compendium Mañjuśrīmūlakalpa, Tārā appears as a personification of Avalokiteśvara’s compassion. Tārā assimilates the qualities of an advanced bodhisattva in the Mañjuśrīmūlakalpa, and develops into a Saviouress from the eight dangers (aṣṭamābhayatārā). She also inherits the maternal qualities of the Perfection of Wisdom (Prajñāpāramitā) and comes to be known as the “mother of the Buddhas” (Skt. sarvabuddhamātā).<sup>4</sup> The worship of Tāra becomes formative in India during the seventh century with the Tārāmūlakalpa, a four hundred folio ritual compendium devoted to her iconographic forms and rites. In this compendium she is called the Blessed Queen of Awakened Awareness (Bhagavatī Mahāvidyārājñī) and is associated with vidyās, sequences of sacred syllables to evoke female deity’s appearance (Landesman 2020). As Landesman (2008, 55) explains, associating Tārā as a mahāvidyā signifies the personification of “the awareness capable of liberating the practitioner who identifies with her in meditation.” With the development of esoteric Buddhist literature, Tārā appears in Mahāyoga and Yogiṇī Tantras as a consort of the tathāgata Amoghasiddhi of the “action” family (karmakula) and represents the wind element.<sup>5</sup> The development and worship of Tārā in Indian Buddhism, similar to the worship of the female buddha Vajrayoginī (see English 2002), takes on a plethora of forms with a wide range of rituals and evocations. By the time of the twelfth century Sādhanamālā (T. Sgrub thabs rgya mtsho), Tārā embodies up to twenty-five forms.<sup>6</sup> In brief, during Atísa’s lifetime the Buddhist goddess Tārā is a full fledged feminine force that may be worshipped and esoterically evoked for apotropaic and soteriological functions among others. In his seminal study on Tārā, Arènes (1996, 121) identified five major groups for the diverse forms of Tārā found in Indian Buddhism that were brought to Tibet. His listing of the major forms of Tārā include:

The fourth grouping which enumerates twenty-one forms of Tārā is the focus of the present study. According to recent research, there are a total of five systems of twenty-one forms of Tārā found in Indian and Tibetan Buddhism. These include the systems of: Sūryagupta, Atiśa, the Sādhana-samuccaya, Jigs-med gling-pa (1729-1798) based on the Klong chen snying thig (which decends from Klong chen rab 'byams pa dri med 'od zer, 1308-1364), and the system of Mchog gyur gling pa (1829-1870) (Watt 2011). Atiśa's system is the earliest evocation practice of the twenty-one forms brought to Tibet and is revealed, according to tradition, to Atiśa during his life by Tārā herself.

Tārā in Atiśa's life and works

The goddess Tārā appeared to Atiśa in his dreams and visions, and bestowed predictions upon him throughout his life. In the traditional biographies of Atiśa she appears to him in his childhood, advises him later in life to travel to Tibet, predicts his meeting with the primary lay Tibetan disciple 'Brom ston rgyal ba'i byung gnas, and foretells his rebirth in Tuṣita heaven (see Apple 2019). In fact, the following Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana will be transmitted to Atiśa based on a prediction he receives from Tārā while travelling to Tibet. This episode of Tārā's prediction may be related to an autobiographical statement that Atiśa makes in his Open Basket of Jewels concerning revelations from Tārā while circumambulating in Bodh Gayā (Apple 2018, 92).

With regard to Atiśa's extant canonical scholarship on the goddess, as noted by Beyer (1973, 12), out of the roughly 117 canonical works attributed to Atiśa only four are specifically devoted to Tārā while only six among seventy-seven translations of Indian Buddhist works focus on the goddess. Yet, as Beyer (1973,11) stresses, the whole ritual structure of Tibetan Buddhist worship of Tārā is based on these works. Among Atiśa's works devoted to the goddess as preserved within Tibetan Kangyurs, such as the brief Praise to Tārā as Three Jewels (Apple 2019, 233-234) or the Abridged Clear Realization of Noble Tārā (Apple 2019, 241-244), Tārā clearly is considered a Buddha who bestows protection and powers of realization.

Atiśa's system of twenty-one Tārās is found in the following two works:

- “The Means for Attainment of the Twenty-One Tārās, the System of the Princely-Lord [Atiśa]” (sgrol ma nyi shu rtsa gcig gi sgrub thabs jo bo rje'i lugs so; Manuscript A in the critical apparatus);
- “The Cycle of Prophecies granted by Tārā to Atiśa” (sgrol mas lung bstan pa'i skor; Manuscript B in the critical apparatus).

The following translation and edition of Atiśa's Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana is based on these two works which are derived from a shared source. However, only “The Cycle of Prophecies granted by Tārā to Atiśa” (Manuscript B) contains a colophon that outlines a lineage of transmission. The colophon states:

The lineage of this [practice] is Venerable Tārā, Princely-Lord [Atiśa] (982–1054), 'Brom ston (rgyal ba'i byung gnas, 1005–1064), Pu to ba (Rin chen gsal, 1027–1105), Sha ra ba (Yon tan grags, 1070–1141), 'Brom ston dbang phyug grags (11th-12th century), Sang ston shākyā gzhon nu, Zla grags gsar ma, Rong ston shākyā rgyal mtshan (a.k.a Rong ston shes bya kun rig, 1367–1449), Mkhan chen blo gros rgyal mtshan (15th century), then myself. Alternatively, Zla grags gsar ma, Slob dpon shes rab dpal (13th century), Rong ston blo bzang pa, then myself.

After Tārā's revelation to Atiśa on the twenty-one praises, the lineage begins with Atiśa's foremost Tibetan disciple 'Brom ston rgyal ba'i byung gnas. The biographies of Atiśa's life record that 'Brom ston translated the twenty-one praises at Snye thang toward the end of Atiśa's life (Apple 2019, 68). The colophon to Manuscript B does not state a translator and neither manuscript begins with an Indian-language title that traditionally authenticates a work to be included among official translations of Buddhist works into Tibetan.<sup>7</sup> Atiśa's Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana was never included in any Tibetan Tengyur (bstan 'gyur) or any other official register of Tibetan Buddhist canonical texts. According to the accounts among recent Tibetan traditions, Atiśa's teachings that were not included in the Tibetan Tengyur were transmitted orally among his Tibetan disciples (Beyer 1973, 320).

If the Tibetan text found in these two manuscripts of Atiśa's

Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana were translated into Tibetan by Atiśa and 'Brom ston circa 1050 CE, then this would make them the earliest extant Tibetan edition of The Praise to Tārā with Twenty-One Verses of Homage as well as the earliest Tibetan ritual text on the twenty-one Tārās. This is because, until now, the canonical Tibetan translation of The Praise to Tārā with Twenty-One Verses of Homage is attributed to Gnyan lo tsā ba dar ma grags (late 11th century), a colleague of Rwa lo tsā ba (1016–1128) and the five commentarial works on the twenty-one Tārās of Sūryagupta were all translated into Tibetan after the 11th century (Willson 1986). Along these lines, most, if not all, studies on the twenty-one Tārās are based on the commentarial exegesis of Sūryagupta's system, whether the study is traditional, as with the First Dalai Lama dGe 'dun grub dpal bzang po (1391–1475) and Tāranātha Kun dga' Snnying po (1575–1634), or modern as found in Willson (1986, 117–166).

After 'Brom ston, the lineage of this teaching was transmitted among well-known bKa' gdams pa figures up to Shākyā gzhon nu (13th century), an abbot at gSang phu ne'u thog monastery. Up to this point, the lineage outlined in this colophon closely matches the primary lineage of reading transmission (lung brgyud) of the 5th Dalai Lama Ngag dbang blo bzang rgya mtsho (1617–82) for the twenty-one Tārās.<sup>8</sup> The lineages are near parallel up to the time of Rong ston shākyā rgyal mtshan (1367–1449) preserved in Manuscript B, with the 5th Dalai Lama lineage diverging beginning with Chos rje shes rab dpal ldan bzang, an abbot of gSang phu monastery. Both of the lineages recorded by Manuscript B and the 5th Dalai lama mention Zla grags gsar ma, "new Candrakīrti" which some scholars have identified as Zhang Thang sag pa (1100–1180?). However, due to the

<sup>8</sup> The primary lineage transmission, with two alternatives, outlined by Ngag dbang blo bzang rgya mtsho (2009, 105.12–106.2) reads: rjes gnang legs par nos pa'i brgyud pa ni / rje btsun sgrol ma / jo bo chen po a ti sha / 'brom ston rgyal ba'i 'byung gnas / rgyal sras po to ba / bshes gnyen sha ra ba / gtum ston dbang phyug grags / bang ston shākyā gzhon nu / zla grags gsar ma / chos rje shes rab dpal / rong ston blo bzang grags pa (15th century) / mkhas btsun yon tan rgya mtsho / thams cad mkhyen pa dge 'dun rgya mtsho (1476 – 1542) / blo dpon skal bzang rgya mtsho / rdo rje 'chang pha bong kha pa dpal 'byor lhun grub (1561 – 1637) / drin can bla ma 'jam dbyangs chos dbyings rang grol / des bdag za hor bande la'o (1617 – 1682) / / yang na sha ra ba nas / bya 'chad ka ba ye shes rdo rje / skyer sgang pa / sangs rgyas dgon pa ba / mchims nam mkha' grags / ze'u sku mched / mchims blo bzang grags pa / gro ston kun dga' rgyal mtshan / mkhlan chen grub pa shes rab / thams cad mkhyen pa dge 'dun grub / gnas rnying chos rje kun dga' bde legs / thams cad mkhyen pa dge 'dun rgya mtsho (1476 – 1542) man gong bzhin no / / yang na 'brom ston nas / spyan snga tshul khriims [106] 'bar / bya yul ba gzhon nu 'od / 'chad ka ba man gong ltar ro / / nye brgyud ni rje btsun sgrol ma / thams cad mkhyen pa dge 'dun rgya mtsho (1476 – 1542) man 'dra'o / /

time gap between this epithet and Rong ston shes bya kun rig (1367–1449), the epithet may refer to followers of Candrakīrti who resided at Thang sag chos grwa where Rong ston pa studied in his youth (Koboyashi 2005, 30). In any case, the primary listed lineage in Manuscript B ends with the an unidentified figure receiving the practice from Mkhan chen blo gros rgyal mtshan (15th century).<sup>9</sup>

Atísa's System of Twenty-One Tārās: Colors, Functions, and Mantras

As an Indian Buddhist master trained in Mahāyāna and Vajrayāna scholasticism and ritual, Atísa was intimately familiar with the theory and practice of Tārā as an esoterically evoked tutelary deity (iṣṭadevatā). The Praise to Tārā with Twenty-One Verses of Homage is preserved in Sanskrit as a dhāraṇī-mantra (gzungs sngags) in the Tibetan canonical translation of the third chapter of The Tantra on the Origin of All Rites of Tārā, Mother of All the Tathāgatas (hereafter The Tārā Tantra).<sup>10</sup> Atísa must have been familiar with The Tārā Tantra and its rites as well as Tārā's Fundamental Ritual Text (Tārāmūlakalpa).<sup>11</sup>

The beginning of The Tārā Tantra describes how Tārā is considered as “a mother who gives birth to the buddhas of the three times” who is beyond samsāra and nirvāṇa. Tārā is described in terms like Prajñāpāramitā, being unproduced and unceasing, without decrease or increase, by nature in nirvāṇa, synonymous with Realm of Reality (dharmadhātu). This is similar to the description of the Realm of Reality that Atísa describes in the initial verses of his The Song with a Vision for the Realm of Reality (Apple 2019, 133–158).

Atísa sees Tārā as a hypostasis of Mother Wisdom in visions during the latter portion of his life and refers to her as the “Mother of the Perfect Buddhas” in his sādhanas devoted to her (Apple 2019, 70–71, 236). Tārā as a liberating feminine force for Atísa is the embodiment of perfect awakened wisdom. Tārā as a Buddha for Atísa manifests her activities based on the realm of reality (dharmadhātu), according to the principles of awakened activity

<sup>9</sup> Mkhan chen blo gros rgyal mtshan, also known as Nyang stod bye phu ba mkhan chen blo gros rgyal mtshan pa, Mkhan chen blo rgyal ba, or Sngags 'chang blo rgyal appears to have been the thirteenth abbot of Tshogs pa dge 'dun sgang (Heimbel 2013, 226, 229).

<sup>10</sup> The full title is De bzhiin gshegs pa thams cad kyi yum sgrol ma las sna tshogs byung ba zhes bya ba'i rgyud (Skt. Sarvatathāgatamātratārāviśvakarmabhavanāmatantra). For a recent English translation see Lhasey Lotsawa Translations 2022.

<sup>11</sup> Noteably, Atísa brought the Sanskrit manuscript of the Tārāmūlakalpa to Tibet. The manuscript was deposited in Radreng monastery after Atísa's death and was not translated into Tibetan for three centuries until Bu ston Rin chen grub (1290–1364) translated the work (see Landesman 2020, 15–16).

(‘phrin las) outlined in the Mahāyānasamgraha.<sup>12</sup>

Inspired by the lady he met at the base of the Bodh Gayā stupa, Atiśa is thinking with The Praise to Tārā with Twenty-One Verses of Homage in the Sanskrit language that is preserved in the third chapter of the The Tārā Tantra. This may be inferred from the fact that not only is Atiśa a fully trained Indian Buddhist Bengali pandita, but also because he closely follows the Sanskrit of the verses in the names that he applies to each of the twenty-one Tārās in his brief ritual evocation instructions. For example, Atiśa names the ninth form Triratnamudrāṇikā (vs. 9a) rather than Varadatārā (Willson 1986, 140), the tenth form Māralokavaśāṃkarī (vs. 10d) rather than Śokavinodanatārā (Willson 1986, 141), or the sixteenth form Vidyāhūṃkāradīpita (vs 16d) rather than Rāganiśūdanatārā (Wilson 1986, 152) (see Appendix II).

Atiśa's Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana begins with the instruction to visualize a green colored (sku mdog ljang khu) Tārā in the space before one. This confirms the later textual and oral Tibetan tradition that the twenty-one forms of Tārā arise from a green colored Tārā. Green is associated with the performance of all activities as mentioned by Buddhaguhya in his description of Tārā within his commentary to The Mahā-Vairocana-Abhisam̄bodhi Tantra:

Light green is a mixture of white, blue and yellow. The symbolism of these colours is as follows: White signifies pacifying, yellow signifies enriching and blue signifies subduing, and their mixture into one colour signifies the performance of all these activities.<sup>13</sup>

Atiśa's Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana follows this symbolism as Atiśa states at the end of the sādhana, “Thus, all accomplishments, including pacifying, increasing, magnetizing/subjugating, and destroying will be bestowed.” These activities correspond to the four activities (Skt. caturkarman, T. las bzhi) presented in esoteric Buddhist literature that classify ritual events in terms of these functions that are often correlated, as with the above citation, with colors and directions. In this manner, pacifying rites are white and performed facing North, increasing rites are yellow and performed facing East; destroying rites are black and performed facing South; and magnetizing/subjugating are red and performed facing West.

<sup>13</sup> Hodge 2003, 108. On green color being the source of the twenty-one Tārās see Wayman and Tajima, 1992, p. 147, note 45, v.140-2-5. The Fifth Dalai Lama Ngag dbang blo bzang rgya mtsho (2009, 104) mentions seng ldeng nags kyi sgrol ma (“Khadira Tārā”) as the basis and Jayapāṇḍita does so as well (Landesman 2020, p. 41, note 145). The Sanskrit basis of Atiśa's focus on a “green colored Tārā” is confirmed in the Sādhanamālā, (Bhattacharyya, Vol. 1, 2009 [1925], p.40.10: ...tārā śyāmā.... This is contrary to the claim of Shaw (2006, 325) that śyāmā is not attested in a Sanskrit source.

In Atiśa's Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana, the colors of the forms of Tārā are distributed with four orange (or reddish/gold) forms and seven that are red signifying, in general, "magnetizing/subjugating," while three forms are gold signifying increasing and five are white signifying pacification. Only two forms of Tārā are associated with destructive rites (see Appendix I). Along these lines, all the forms of Tārā have the same bodily shape with one face and two arms, but differ as to individual color and the different-colored vase that each Tārā holds in her outstretched hand. This pattern of color and form matches the system associated with the name of Nāgārjuna as described and translated by Beyer (1973, xiii, 333-335, 470). Be that as it may, the manuscripts of Atiśa's Twenty-One Tārās Sādhana also furnish visualization instructions and mantras.

Until recently, the mantras for evoking the twenty-one Tārās have not been published.<sup>14</sup> However, two manuals for contemporary practice of the twenty-one Tārās recently published by two Tibetan monastic teachers (bla ma), Khenpo Lama Migmar Tseten (2015) and Lama Zopa Rinpoche (2022), have provided mantras for each of the twenty-one Tārās. As Atiśa's rendition of these mantras often differ from later sources, I have noted in the annotations to the Tibetan critical edition variant readings of the mantras from both manuscripts, as well as a later manuscript attributed to Pañchen Blo bzang chos kyi rgyal mtshan (1570–1662), for comparison. A good example of the differences between Atiśa's rendition of the mantras and other editions is the mantra for the Noble Tārā Victorious Over the Three Words found in verse 6. The mantra given in later sources is: om tāre tuttāre śatrūn ucchaṭaya svāhā. The main verbal phrase in this sequence is ucchaṭaya, "to drive away."<sup>15</sup> On the other hand, Atiśa provides the mantra: om tāre tuttāre śatrum gacchata svāhā. The main verbal phrase here is gacchata, the second person imperative plural from √gam, "go (away)." In brief, the mantras in Atiśa's system have less syllables and are in second person imperative forms.

The Means for Attainment of the Twenty-One Tārās, the System of the Princely-Lord [Atiśa]

[1003.11] The Means for Attainment of the Twenty-One Tārās, the System of the Princely-Lord [Atiśa]

[Preface]

I pay homage to the Venerable Noble Tārā!

[The light rays] touch one's body, touches the speech purifying the obstructions of the body, and touches the heart purifying the obstructions of speech, purifying the obstructions of mind, and cleansing the latencies of clinging and attachment. Afterwards, visualize the Venerable Lady [Tārā] becoming indistinguishable with oneself, like a dream illusion. Then, however much one recites praises, [such as] three times, or seven times, and so forth, the former Venerable Lady [Tārā] dissolves into the crown of one's head. Contemplate one's own body [1003.20] becoming transparent and empty like the vanishing of a rainbow. Loosen the body and mind with the mind becoming luminous and clear. Recognize this and meditate for a while. Then, dedicate three times by stating “With my roots of virtue may I attain buddhahood for the benefit of all sentient beings.” Accordingly, arising all the virtuous qualities which are explained from the text of the Praises is to achieve the praise. Tārā became a heartfelt spiritual deity prophesized to the Princely-Lord [Atiśa] and he gained accomplishments. Gradually, she became a heartfelt spiritual deity for all of the Kadam tradition. [1004] She dispels obstacles. There is nothing greater than this accomplishment and blessing.

[Homage]

I pay homage to the Venerable Noble Tārā!

[Introduction]

At the time when the divine Princely-Lord [Atiśa] was travelling to Tibet, having come to circumambulate in Vajrāsana, he was lauding the twenty-one praises to the Lady [Tārā] while circumambulating, where he met an actual Lady at the foot of the stupa who was predicted by Tārā. Atiśa received a prophecy to at once depart for Tibet, [the Lady said,] "You will be beneficial in Tibet, [1004.5] through your spiritual deity within this twenty-one praises, the heartfelt spiritual deity, hindrances will not arise." Having said as such, twenty-one slokas were bestowed [to Atiśa] to append to the twenty-one praises.

[Atiśa's System of Twenty-One Tārās]

Homage to Tārā, quick and heroic,
Whose glance is instantaneous like lightning.
You arose from the heart of the blossoming lotus
That is the face of the lord of the three worlds. [1]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to pacify enemies, hindrances and harmfulness, he should supplicate the swift and heroic Noble Tārā. In the space before one, [visualize] a red colored Venerable [Tārā] with one face, [1004.10] two arms, she holds a vase for controlling in the palm of her right hand, the left hand holding a blue lotus, supplicate and instantly cultivate.

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture vāśāṇi kuru svāhā /

Thus, by reciting one will fully subdue all enemies, hindrances, and the misguided.

Homage to you whose face resembles

One hundred autumn full moons gathered;
 Your brilliant radiance blazes,
 Like a thousand clusters of stars. [2]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to pacify sickness and obstructing forces, he should supplicate the Venerable White Tārā [1004.15]. Instantly in the space before one, visualize and supplicate the Venerable Tārā white like the Autumn moon, with her right hand turned upward she holds a white vase for pacifying, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat with right foot extended, left foot drawn back.

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture śāntīṃ kuru svāhā /

Thus, by reciting one will pacify all disease, misfortune, obstructing forces, and unharmonious factors. All peaceful actions will be achieved.

Homage to you, Golden One,
 Whose hand is adorned with a blue lotus flower. [1004.20]
 Whose field of activity is generosity, diligence, austerities,
 Serenity, patience, and concentration. [3]

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture puṣṭīṃ kuru svāhā /

Thus, by reciting all longevity, good fortune, and resources will increase.

Homage to you, whose triumphs are endless, [1004.25]
 Jewel on the Tathāgata's crown.
 You are well attended to by the sons of the Victorious One,
 Who have attained all the perfections. [4] [1005]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to achieve long life, he should supplicate the Venerable Tārā who is completely victorious, Jewel on the Tathāgata's crown. Instantly in the space before one, visualize a Venerable Tārā with golden color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a golden vase for long life, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṁ tāre tuttāre ture āyujñāna svāhā /

Thus, [1005.5] by reciting one's lifespan will increase to a hundred from ten years.

Homage to Tuttārā, who with hūm
 Fulfills all wishes to the bounds of space.
 You trample the seven worlds underfoot.
 And possess the strength to summon all. [5]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to influence and seduce a woman, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] who utters hūm. Instantly in the space before one, visualize a Venerable [Tārā] with an orange colored body, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase for enchanting, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing in the 'half-cross legged' position on a lotus and moon seat. [1005.10] Supplicate her with the following:

Oṁ tāre tuttāre ture so-and-so ākarṣaya hrī svāhā /

Thus, by reciting one will influence the object of one's awareness.

Homage to you, praised by Śakra,
 Agni, Brahmā, maruts, and Śiva.
 The hosts of bhūtas, vetālas, gandharvas,
 And yakṣas pay tribute to you. [6]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to tame all the harmful spirits, he should visualize the Noble [Tārā] who is completely victorious over the three worlds, [1005.15] with dark red color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which intoxicates harmful spirits, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṁ tāre tuttāre ture śatrūṇi gacchata svāhā /

Thus, by reciting, harmful spirits, Śiva, gods, earth spirits, and so forth, all the great forces, will become your servant.

Homage to you, with traṭ and phat

Crush the magical devices of other traditions.
 With your right leg bent and your left leg extended,
 You shine amid flames blazing wildly. [7]

Thus, [1005.20] if a certain yogin wishes to turn back another's sorcerer spell, he should supplicate the Noble [Tārā] who conquers others. One should visualize a Venerable Tārā called "Conquering Others," black color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which turns back sorcerer spells, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture rbod zer sarva zlog bhyo svāhā /

Thus, by reciting all contemptible sorcerer spells will be overturned.

Homage to Turā, the fearsome lady,
 Destroyer of the most powerful demons. [1005.25]
 With your lotus face and stern frown,
 You are the slayer of each and every foe! [8]

Thus, [1006] if a certain yogin wishes to slay enemies, he should supplicate the Noble [Tārā] who conquers Māras and enemies. Instantly in the space before one, visualize a Venerable Tārā who conquers Māras and enemies, having a dark red color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which destroys enemies, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture so-and-so amukāṇ marāya phat /

Thus, [1006.5] by reciting all māras and enemies will be overturned.

Homeage to you, who fingers grace your heart,
 Displaying the mudrā of the Three Jewels.
 Graced by wheels in all directions,
 Your natural radiance overwhelms all. [9]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to be protected from all fears, he should supplicate the Noble [Tārā] whose mudrā displays the Three Jewels. Instantly in the space before one, visualize a Venerable [Tārā] having a white color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which protects from all fears [1006.10], the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture "all the harm to so-and-so" sarvarakṣa svāhā /

Thus, by reciting one will be protected from all rebirth in the three lower realms in future lives and from all harm in this life from māras and hostile spirits.

Homage to you, supremely joyous,
 Your splendidorous crown spreading garlands of light.
 Tuttārā, smiling and laughing,
 You bring demons and worlds within your control. [10]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to tame māras and hindrances, he should supplicate the Venerable [1006.15] [Tārā] who brings māras and hindrances under her power. Instantly in the space before one, visualize a Venerable [Tārā] who brings māras and hindrances under her power having a red color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which conquers over māras, the left hand holding a blue lotus, with right foot extended, left foot drawn back, while residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture sarvapapāṇī māraya hūṃ phaṭ

Thus, by reciting one will bring all non-Buddhists and those with wrong view under your power.

Homage to you, who can summon
 The hosts of earthly guardians. [1006.20]
 Knitting your quivering brows, with the syllable hūṃ
 You deliver from every misfortune. [11]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to clear away the suffering of poverty, he should supplicate the Noble Tārā who clears away poverty and misfortune. One should visualize a Venerable Noble Tārā who is reddish gold like unalloyed purified gold, refined gold, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which protects against poverty, the left hand holding a blue lotus, residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture dhara svāhā.

[1006.25] Thus, by reciting one will increase wealth, domestic animals, and precious substances and is protected against poverty.

Homage to you, [1007] so brightly adorned,
With a sliver of moon as your crown,
Your locks always graced by Amitābha,
Whose bright light streams forever forth. [12]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to actualize auspiciousness, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] who bestows all auspiciousness. Instantly in the space before one, visualize Venerable [Tārā] who bestows auspiciousness, having a golden color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which bestows auspiciousness, [1007.5] the left hand holding a blue lotus, residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture svāhā.

Thus, by reciting one will receive all auspicious things, happiness and well-being, and achieve all accomplishments.

Homage to you, seated amid blazing flames
That resemble the fire that ends an eon.
Immersed in joy, your right leg extends, and the left is bent.
Thus, you crush legions of foes. [13]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to be protected against hindrances and obstacles, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] who blazes like fire. [1007.10] Instantly in the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] who blazes like fire, red color like fire, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which protects against obstacles, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Oṃ tāre tuttāre ture pota yasmi kuru svāhā.

Thus, by reciting one will paralyze, be protected against, and destroy all enemies and armies.

Homage to you, who on the earth's surface
Strike your palms and stamp your feet;
The hūṃ that is formed by your frown
Smashes the seven netherworlds to nothing but dust. [14] [1007.15]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to strike against hindrances, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] who is wrathfully frowning. Instantly in the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] who is wrathfully frowning, having a black color with a slight frown, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which strikes against hindrances, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat. Supplicate her with the following:

Om tāre tuttāre ture vajra mahāpada bhasmīṇikuru svāhā.

Thus, by reciting all enemies, obstacles, and hindrances will be pacified.

Homage to you, [1007.20] blissful, gracious, and tranquil,
Whose domain is the peace of nirvāṇa.
In perfect union with svāhā and om,
You lay to waste every terrible evil. [15]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to pacify sinfulness, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] she of supreme peacefulness. Instantly in the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] she of supreme peacefulness, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase for pacifying sinfulness, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat.

Om tāre tuttāre ture sarvapāpam praśamanāye svāhā.

Thus, by reciting, all sinfulness, obscurations, and impure unwholesome tendencies [1007.25] will be pacified.

Homage to you, who, immersed in rapture,
Shatter the bodies of all foes.
You shine with the knowledge-syllable hūṁ, [1008]
As your mantra's ten syllables are set forth. [16]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to increase one's intelligence, wishes to be victorious over the speech of others in debate, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] who arises from the hūṁ of awareness. Instantly in the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] having a red color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase for increasing knowledge mantras, the left hand holding a blue lotus, residing on a lotus and moon seat. [1008.5]

Om tāre tuttāre ture sarvadharma pratipariśodhaya svāhā.

Thus, by reciting, one will destroy all capabilities of the knowledge mantras of others and increase one's own wisdom and intelligence.

Homage to Turā, your feet stomping,
 Formed from the seed of the syllable hūṁ.
 The mountains of Meru, Mandara, and Vindhya,
 And all the three worlds—you cause them to quake. [17]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to subdue all māras and hindrances, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] who causes the three realms to tremble. In the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] having a reddish gold color, [1008.10] with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which subdues knowledge mantras, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat.

Om tāre tuttāre ture sarva stambani tare svāhā

Thus, reciting one will subdue all others knowledge mantra actions and subdue all enemies and robbers.

Homage to you, who hold in your hand
 A deer-marked moon like a divine lake.
 With tāra uttered twice and then with phat,
 You eliminate all poisons. [18]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to pacify the poison of the multitude of Nāgas, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] who pacifies poison and sickness. [1008.15] Instantly in the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] who pacifies poison and sickness having a red color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which neutralizes posion, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat.

Om tāre tuttāre ture sarvani śintam kuru svāhā.

Thus, by reciting one will be liberated from sickness, poison, and harm of Nāgas.

Homage to you, sovereign of divine hosts,
 Served by gods and kinnaras.
 Your resplendence, an armor of joy,
 Pacifies strife and clears away nightmares. [19] [1008.20]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to clear away disputes and bad dreams, he should supplicate the Venerable Tārā who clears away all suffering. Instantly in the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] who clears away all suffering having a white color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which clears away suffering, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat.

Om tāre tuttāre ture mocana svāhā.

Thus, by reciting one will be freed from quarrels and being placed in prison. [1008.25]

Homage to you, whose two eyes shine brightly
Like the sun and the moon when it's full.

Tuttārā, with twice uttered hara, [1009]
You pacify the most intractable ills. [20]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to be protected from infectious disease, and so forth, he should supplicate Tārā who clears away infectious disease. Instantly in the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] who clears away all infectious disease, having an orange color, with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which clears away infectious disease, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat.

Om tāre tuttāre ture visarata hūm hā. [1009.5]

Thus, by reciting all infectious disease and pestilence will be pacified.

Homage to you, who have the power to pacify,
You display the three true natures.

Turā, supreme lady, you destroy
The hordes of grahas, vetālas, and yakṣas. [21]

Thus, if a certain yogin wishes to fully complete miraculous activities, he should supplicate the Venerable [Tārā] who fully completes all miraculous activities. Instantly in the space before one, visualize the Venerable [Tārā] having a white color, [1009.10] with her right hand turned upward she holds a vase which accomplishes various magical feats, the left hand holding a blue lotus, while residing on a lotus and moon seat with right foot extended, left foot drawn back. Supplicate her with the following:

Om tāre tuttāre ture sarva sādhana svāhā.

Thus, all accomplishments, including pacifying, increasing, magnetizing/subjugating, and destroying will be bestowed. This [practice] was given to the Princely-Lord from a prophecy by the Noble Lady.
